JULIAN OIL HEADS LOSE BATTLES IN COURT

GUARDS DEFIED BY FELONS AT BURNED OHIO PRISON

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

This Carnera business is getting more or less tiresome as it goes along.

* * * *

As you will see by the papers, Carnera won his battle in the north the other night by a knockout, his fifteenth.

* * * *

Before the husky Italian Came to California there were thousands of fans who believed he was good —and that he could fight.

* * * *

Perhaps he is, but after that comedy at the Oakland baseball park, it will take more than a publicity man to convince residents of California that Carnera is a fighter.

* * * *

But, of course, he is right in the middle of his campaign for the title.

* * * *

First comes the knockovers who kiss the canvas at a nasty look. Then comes the battlers that are not so good and then not so bad.

* * * *

During all this campaigning, the fighter's managers must be sure that their charge will not be knocked out. He must pile up a knockout score so that he may be classed as a logical contender — whatever that is.

* * * *

Sometimes one can't blame Tunney for dropping out of the alleged "game."

* * * *

The prayers of the night-watchman and night workers have been answered.

* * * *

The bay district now has a radio station which broadcasts from midnight until 6 a. m.

* * * *

This station is located in San Francisco and has been on the air with its "OWL" program since last Saturday night.

* * * *

There has always been a demand in this section for an all night station. Los Angeles and southern California have several of them. But, they broadcast on such a low power that only a first class set can bring them in.

* * * *

When the radio was in its infancy thousands of fans who owned two-tube sets, refused to listen in to stations that broadcast phonograph records, declaring that if they wanted to hear a phonograph they would buy one.

* * * *

Today, however, you'll find a majority of fans listening to stations that broadcast phonograph music, knowing that the program must be good.

* * * *

There are three stations in the bay region that broadcast first class programs every day. A large percentage of these programs are from a coast to coast chain.

* * * *

One can turn the radio to one of these three stations and enjoy a good program all day long.

MEN REFUSE TO ENTER CELLS

COLUMBUS, April 23.—UP—Defying guards to lock them in their cells, 1600 convicts at the state penitentiary sullen and grumbling since Monday night's tragic fire were allowed tonight to continue their sulk.

At nine o'clock, the usual hour for retirement, the convicts in four cell blocks stuffed bits of waste and splinters into the key holes of the cell doors so that the locks could not be turned over.

Prison authorities immediately issued an order to all guards that no forceful measures should be taken. Lights were left on in the cell block corridors and the prisoners were allowed to walk up and down the hallways.

No Force

Officials at the prison said that no effort would be made to use force, in view of the handful of guards on duty and the present temper of the whole prison.

Several minor disturbances occured in the prison tonight before nine o'clock. Two convicts engaged in a spirited fist fight before they were separated by guards.

Several prisoners were conducted to quarters in other parts of the prison when it was learned they were trying to incite a rebellion.

Food Demanded

Several convicts made their way to the guard room, carrying buckets as though they expected a midnight lunch.

Coffee and rolls were served the prisoners last night at midnight after they had set up a howl for it. A similar lunch was to be served tonight if the prisoners demanded it, officials said.

Warden Thomas said he has no fear that the convicts will attempt an uprising and that he has issued no orders for reinforcement of the guard.

The situation throughout the prison appeared to be unusually tense and officials were keeping a sharp lookout for any signs of disturbance.

CANNERY TO BE WELCOMED TO RICHMOND

The dinner tonight to welcome the Filice and Perrelli cannery company is to be the forerunner of an annual event of the same kind at which honor will be paid to both old and new industries in the city, it was decided at yesterday's meeting of the directors of the chamber of commerce.

Under a plan outlined by Fred D. Parr, chairman of the publicity committee, it was voted to hold an annual industrial luncheon in Richmond at which a general welcome and appreciation will be extended to all existing industries and to any new ones which may have come in during the previous 12 months.

"I believe we are too prone to overlook the good which comes from the industries already here and the extensions and improvements which they make from time to time," said Parr.

The plan calls for a dinner and a widespread exhibition of locally made products in banks, hotel lobbies and other public places. The first of these events will be held in September, according to the tentative arrangements.

Meanwhile attendance at tonight's banquet to Filice and Perrelli was urged by E. B. Bull, chairman of the industrial committee.

"All loyal people really interested in the progress of our city should show their appreciation of new industries by coming to this gathering," said Bull. "Here is an opportunity to extend the hand of welcome to an industry that will employ 700 persons."

Reservations should be made in advance and are being handled by the chamber of commerce. The public as well as members of the chamber are invited.

Stolen Cars Found Here

Two stolen automobiles were discovered by police at Winehaven yesterday.

The stolen cars, one a small truck and the other a light sedan, were the property of Rolph Jensen, 639 Eighty-first street, Oakland, and M. D. Sarmento, 27 Oaks boulevard, San Leandro. Both machines were reported stolen Tuesday afternoon.

The automobiles were discovered at 1:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Richmond police, who reported that every detachable part had been removed by the thieves.

CRAFT WORK SHOWN BY PUPILS

By JAMES SMITH

Oh where, oh where have the "three R's" gone?

This question was uppermost in the minds of Richmond parents as they observed their sons tapping the linotype keys, hewing costly desks and lamps out of rough lumber, and hammering iron into glistening andirons and candle-holders last night in the Richmond Union high school manual training shops at the official opening of Public Schools week in Richmond.

The citizens of this city were last night given a chance to observe the importance of manual training in modern education. The high school printing, wood working, and machine shops were in full operation, and the results of the pupils' work was exhibited before the admiring eyes of almost 1000 visitors.

The high school printing pupils of John D. Doney, printing instructor, published the Richmond Union High school Hi-Nus during the exhibition. William Neeley's woodworking pupils also exhibited the use of the many saws, lathes, and other implements used in the manufacture of wooden objects, while the machine shop students of Martin E. Salmi illustrated the manufacture of both fine tools and the cruder, heavier girders. All presented a scene of energy and industry.

Art Work

The visitors at the exhibition were also startled at the beauty and maturity of the art work of

According to word received from Long Beach yesterday, more than 2200 men will be employed at the Long Beach Ford company's assembly plant.

It is expected that when the Richmond plant opens, the number of men to be employed will be in excess of the number at the Long Beach plant. It was stated recently that the Richmond assembly plant would be about one third times larger than the southern plant.

The Long Beach plant will have an annual payroll of $5,000,000.

The plant was formally opened last Monday with ceremonies attended by civic leaders. The plant's assembling capacity is 370 cars per day and practically all incoming material will be sent to Long Beach by Ford steamers from Chester, Pa.

The Ford company now has 35 assembly plants in the United States; eight in Canada; ten in European countries and others in Australia, South America, Cuba, Mexico, China and Japan.

25 Arrested In Pittsburg Raids

PITTSBURG, April 23.—Following an initial cleanup of alleged gambling establishments here, Pittsburg was today waiting with interest, further expected police raids which were provoked by the complaint registered with Mayor Hugh Donovan, by Max Grabstein, newly elected council member.

Grabstein stirred interest in the municipal election last week to a high pitch, when he charged that gambling was rampant in Pittsburg and that no effort had been made to control it.

Twenty-five were arrested on vagrancy charges in the cleanup, and owners of the pool rooms were ordered to make the places conform to an ordinance that requires a clear view of the premises from the street, under penalty of prosecution.

Police in visiting each place warned the owners that frosted glass must be removed and that alcoves and booths will not be permitted.

23 KILLED IN INDIA RIOTS

LONDON, April 23. —(UP)—The worst riots since the beginning of the present Independence movement were reported from India tonight.

A Lahore dispatch to the Daily Express said three British soldiers and perhaps 20 natives were killed in fighting at Peshwar, India, near the Afghan border.

A Calcutta dispatch to the Daily Mail said the riot had occurred in the jail at the suburb of Alipore in which Sen Gupta of Calcutta and Subhas Chandra Bose, leader of the "young India" cult, were perhaps mortally injured.

Burns Crew

According to the Lahore dispatch, a mob stopped two British armored cars at Peshwar, covered them with gasoline and ignited them, causing two members of the crew to burn to death.

The rioters then captured an English sergeant and hacked him to death with hatchets, the dispatch said.

Troops rushed to the scene and opened rife and machine gun fire, routing the mob. British soldiers and Ourkhas were reported in control of Peshwar tonight.

The riot at Alipore was reported to have been caused by thousands of civil disobedience volunteers thronging the prison and refusing to disperse. The Bengal Provincial government is said to be preparing a communique, stating that a number of new

LEWIS TO BE RETURNED TO L.A.

SEATTLE, April 23. —(UP)—S. C. Lewis and Jacob Berman today fought losing battles in their efforts to keep from being returned to Los Angeles to answer charges in connection with the crash of Julian Petroleum Corporation.

In a hearing before Judge Jeremiah Netterer a writ of habeas corpus was granted the Los Angeles authorities whereby the former president of the $100,000,000 corporation will be taken from McNeil Island penitentiary to Southern California.

He probably will leave with prison guards today. District Attorney Buron Fitts, who represented Los Angeles county in the hearing, will remain here until a final decision is reached in the Berman case.

Berman, alias Jack Bennet, was charged with being a fugitive from justice today on information filed in justice court by chief deputy sheriff Coffey, in a move to prevent Berman from seeking a haven at McNeil Island penitentiary.

His attorneys immediately obtained a temporary restraining order to prevent county officials from turning Berman over to the Los Angeles authorities.

A writ of habeas corpus to secure his release from the county jail was filed.

Women Who Work—and Overwork

WHAT has always seemed to us one of the perfectly legitimate arguments against married women as wage-earners is the contention that the woman who works hard outside her home often works just as hard inside it—that the two-job wife makes good at the expense of her health and strength. A man—according to the highest authority—cannot serve two masters. Then how can a woman do a full day's work in the factory and another full day's work taking care of her house and of several children?

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

This problem of one type of fifty-fifty wife has just been brought home to all women by the publication of a highly interesting survey of the immigrant woman and her job, conducted by the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor. Over 2,100 foreign-born women wage-earners, in many instances while toiling over washtubs, peeling potatoes, scrubbing floors, or doing other manual work in their homes at the close of their day in factory or workshop, were interviewed by the bureau agents.

The insistent, thought-provoking fact emphasized over and over again in this investigation is that these women are doing double duty. They have not been able to develop a technique—through no fault of their own—such as is practiced by better-paid fifty-fifty wives, who earn enough to hire service in their homes, or whose home service is simplified by the absence of children. Such a woman, we believe, often finds freedom and satisfaction in taking a paid job and doing either no housework or much less of it than she would do had she not her salary.

BUT how is it freedom for a woman to do all the work that her mother used to do—including the care of several small children—and to do in addition work similar to that which her husband does? She is not to be described as a working woman but as a woman who overworks.

No wonder one of these overworked women told the investigator for the Women's Bureau: "I wish my husband make enough so I don't have to go to work. It is hard to sit there all day and then come home, cook, and work, but what can we do? We can't live on $20 a week."

No wonder the husbands of these women expressed similar sentiments. One wished that "things were so that men could earn enough to support a family, then women would not have to slave at two jobs."

No wonder the women break down. "They worked under such a strain while young that they were prematurely old at forty," the Women's Bureau reports. "One couple of forty-two and forty years finally had achieved success in that they owned their home, but it had been at the expense of their health. They had nothing but the house and were worrying about sickness and fast-approaching age. The husband was "plenty sick" and the wife looked very frail. For years she had "all the time hurry," at home and in the shop, else she would "make nothing."

HERE are the work-records of some of the other fifty-fifty wives interviewed.

"Everything I do," reported one woman, "wash, iron, cook, clean, sew, work in the garden, make bread if time. Get up at 4.30, feed the chickens, make the breakfast, get ready the lunches, and it is time to start to work; six o'clock come home, make eats for children; washing at night-time, and make clothes for children."

A cigar roller had begun the week's washing at 2.30 in the morning on the Saturday before the interview, as it was summer and she felt that it was too hot to wash in the afternoon. She had ironed on Sunday, and was finishing this task Monday night. She customarily worked at home almost every evening and much of Sunday, making her child's clothes and most of her own.

Another described her Sunday: "Yesterday I scrubbed the shanty, washed the porch, mopped and wiped the windows. I felt just like work, but to-day I can't drag to work. Work is never done—never stay clean."

Woman after woman wearily confessed to devoting two or more nights each week to laundry work for her family. Only twenty-eight of the 2,100 women investigated had no housework to do. About a thousand had practically no assistance in caring for their homes and families, in addition to their long day of toil outside the home.

WHAT is the answer? Apparently, in the case of many women, the double duty must go on if the family is to exist. "The wife's double job of contributing to the family maintenance and keeping house was accepted as a matter of course, as if it were only natural that husbands could not make enough to support their families," according to the Women's Bureau.

Help from the husbands seems to be the only practical alleviation of many a fifty-fifty wife's case of overwork. If paid service is not possible, and if the wife helps the husband by earning outside the home, let him help her by working inside it! Let him help with the dishes and the laundry and the scrubbing—he is no more tired than she at the end of the day, and, if they halve the domestic labor, neither will have so much to do.

Many of the husbands of the hard-working wives studied by the Women's Bureau were offering just this co-operative team-work. One husband who was doing the washing volunteered the comment: "She help me, so I help her." And in that sentence, it seems to us, is the expression of the finest sort of truly American matrimonial partnership!

LEGACY

I leave in your heart the ways we knew:
The feel of spring, and translucent blue
Of a summer sky, and September's gold,
The whiteness of birch, and the manifold
Crisp days of winter with ice and snow;
All lovely things that we used to know.

I give you the dreams that we dreamt last year,
The joys we felt, and the grief or fear
That we shared together—I give you each
Word, touch and look of the human speech—
I leave in your heart each yesterday:
Yet hold for myself what I give away!

Attractive Salt Shakers

A housewife who has been annoyed by the rusting of salt and pepper shakers in the beach bungalow has just finished an attractive set that will withstand dampness. She purchased aluminum salt and pepper shakers and painted them with a coat of black enamel. When this became thoroughly dry she heated sealing wax and applied it in a neat design. She used orange, green and old blue wax for this decoration.

Modernizing the Home

Softening the Modern Scheme

By Alma Zaiss

Dear Miss Zaiss:

I have a bedroom to furnish. It is a very small room at the back of an old-fashioned apartment, with one window looking out on the fire-escape, and it isn't very bright, as no sun gets around there. I was wondering if maybe something modern would make it interesting and brighten it up. I don't mean a loud scheme, or one of those terribly severe ones either, but something kind of in between, if you get the idea.

I have to have everything—a rug and curtains, and furniture, too, and have only about $500 to spend, but I feel that should be enough for such a small room. I send a floor plan to show size and shape of room. It is northeast exposure and has plain beige walls. Any suggestions you give me will be so gratefully received.

(MISS) J. L. K.

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

WHENEVER two or three are gathered together in conversation about modern schemes, "severity" is the adjective most likely to be heard in the exchange of views. And always it is said with regret, as though that quality were a fault for which the decorator could find no cure.

It so happens that one can make a number of compromises which tend to soften the modern scheme without destroying its smartness, and Miss K.'s letter gives us a fair chance to discuss one or two of them to-day.

In submitting her problem Miss K. herself makes several reservations as she contemplates a modern room. It is not to be loud (although the small, dark, back bedroom disconnected from the rest of the house might offer splendid possibilities for a dashing color scheme); neither is it to be severe, but rather a cross between liveliness and austerity.

The room is very small; the two end walls are cut by a door and a window, which decides the position of the bed for us and leaves just enough room to walk around it. But the diagram shows a good placement of sufficient furniture for convenience.

Miss K. will need commodious drawer space, for the room has no closet; therefore a wide, deep chest will probably suit her best, and instead of the regulation vanity, why not have a corner table with little compartments attached to hinged wings that swing in and out beneath the table? Two plain panel mirrors, each about the width of the straight sides of the table, could be mounted flat on the wall above the table, with edges meeting in the corner to suggest a solid mirror back. This arrangement would give most efficient service and also increase the effects of space and light in the small room.

A little crescent-shaped chair with a low back would be in harmony with the table, and the comfortable chair could also follow out these lines.

Since the outstanding characteristic of modern furniture is its severe simplicity, we shall not attempt to change its personality, but will look elsewhere for the touch of softness which we have been asked to contribute to the room. By a light, friendly treatment of the walls and window we can create a gracious background that will give us just the right note of in-betweenness.

Instead of the plain beige walls now in the room we should like to use a charming modern paper having a pale salmon background and a long, reedy pattern in which turquoise, pale brown and coral are found. The woodwork, of course, would be painted the color of the wall paper ground.

The view from the window is not attractive, and this gives us an excuse to use sheer, full-length glass curtains of shimmering flesh-colored gauze, with transparent overcurtains in a shaded modern pattern in harmony with the paper. The carpet might be a soft pinkish brown in color; the bedspread of a silken fabric in a somewhat lighter tone; the chairs in turquoise. This would give Miss K. a light, colorful scheme that is far from boisterous; neither does it speak in monotones.

A very good illustration of the effect of such a wall and window treatment is shown by the room illustrated, where strength and severe simplicity are finely balanced by other elements that are not quite so robust. There is the very sturdy chair in the foreground; the four-square chest across the way; the geometrical pattern of the carpet—three marks on the side of severity.

Then subtly the scene begins to change. The leafy spray pattern of the modern paper, the sheer draperies at the window, the coverlet of a luminous rayon weave are all beautiful denials of austerity. The curtain treatment alone is worthy of special notice, for here both glass and overcurtains are of fine marquisette, the first, plain-hanging; the over curtains of a modern pattern mounted on the outside of the window frame, one side hanging free, the other caught back gracefully at a high point.

And further contradictions follow; instead of bold modern blossoms in the pottery vase we find a bouquet of quaint, feathery field flowers as old fashioned as one could collect, in perfect sympathy with the wall background and sheer curtains. Beside the bed the little modern night lamp is more assertive; coming into the foreground again, the bold lamp and massive crystal bottle are in equal harmony with the type and size of the chest.

We are always seeking justification for the original things we do, and so dim much of the enjoyment of self-expression. It would seem that this room—which achieves a thoroughly modern scheme without being slavish about it—holds a very interesting lesson for those who would carry out the new note in decoration in its more gracious aspects.

Ever Hear These?

After dusting bronze rub it lightly with sweet oil, then after five minutes remove the oil with a fine cloth and polish with the chamois.

Sugar is absorbed quickly and so blunts the appetite for solid foods; therefore sweets should not be served at the beginning of the meal.

Gifts for April Birthdays

CHOOSING the April birthday gift is made a simple matter by the innumerable articles displayed in the gift sections of the shops to assist shoppers in their selections of Easter gifts and Easter wedding presents.

One can hardly have too many lamps and these range from the little reading lamp to clamp to the book, or a blue night light with a depression for the perfume at $1, to the handsome floor lamp.

If the lady is collecting pewter ware a two candle or a double star pewter candle holder may be acceptable.

A bird feeding stand is an appropriate gift for one who has a lawn or garden, and these are being shown in great variety.

Most men would appreciate a little cedar chest that holds ten neckties and always keeps them pressed and looking new.

How about a card table cover? There are such large assortments. Some of silk, others of colored organdy over decorated white cotton flannel and those of fabrikoid in charming designs.

Napkin rings are revived in gayly colored animals of wood that will delight the kiddies. The woman who is dressing up her porch will appreciate one of those wrought iron wall baskets with the flower pot in red, green, yellow or black.

If the birthday comes before Easter a dress accessory, gloves, bag, hosiery, neckwear, &c., may give pleasure.

Have you thought of mannish stationery, a folding comb or one of those decorated whisk-brushes for the man?

The diamond is the April birthstone and the jewelry counters show wonderful displays of near-diamonds, so this will be an easy gift to select.

The flower of the month is the daisy. Among the wrapping papers is a pretty one in an allover daisy design and this would be pretty to wrap the gift in, or you might use the "diamond studded" crepe paper for wrapping and tuck a few artificial daisies in the cluster bow of the ribbon you use for tying.

The florists' shops are featuring daisy plants as Easter offerings and this would be an appropriate April birthday gift.

The Beauty Shop

SAID a great musician of a celebrated dancer, "She has the most musical body in the world."

The most musical body in the world.

FRANCES OLIVIER

Think of it!

Think of a body so fluid in its movements, a body so filled with rhythms, a body so vibrant, a figure fashioned with such symmetry that it suggests music!

Think of making your own body like that! Or your small daughter's!

Grace has an even greater distinction than beauty. Because it is rarer. Grace means poise, remember, too, and poise is a subtle, irresistible power.

So dance!

Most of the dancers we know walk with a singing grace. They seem rather to flow than to walk. Their entrance into a room, even their most casual entrance, is something that causes heads to turn. So unusual is the easily erect carriage, this winging along, as compared with the rolling or stumbling or tetering or striding of most of us.

Dancing isn't the only way, of course, although to us it seems the most delightful way to cultivate beautiful body movement. There are golfers and swimmers who walk like gods.

How you achieve your ideal doesn't matter so very much, really, just so long as you do achieve it—a body that is musical. But on this one point we are certain—that before the practicing of the dance movements or the fencing positions, or the swing or the stroke or whatever means you employ to develop a graceful, beautiful figure, the vision of what you seek must be startlingly clear, starkly clear in your own mind.

And it seems to us that those words of the great musician ought to help enormously: "the most musical body in the world."

Musical body is enough. See yourself in your mind's eye with a body like that. And then, if you care enough, work until you have realized it. You must care enough when you pause to remember that a musical body possesses a fine and noble magnetism—a great part of which goes into the face which rises above it.

The Farmer's Advice

By Alfalfa Smith

THE other day I needed a good laugh so I went to call upon a woman whose hair has grown white in the service of young men who inhabit furnished rooms.

She told me that she had just paid a month's gas bill of $71 and I know you get the same reaction when I mention this amount that I did.

The point is, she had a young man roomer who used to light the gas log in his room and sit by the window in his shirt sleeves and watch the gas burn.

It will not take very much imagination to figure out how long the gas log stayed in the young man's rooms after the bill for $71 came.

You will learn from this that it is important to watch the outgo of your money as well as the intake, and further, not to put gas logs in roomers' quarters.

A DISH A DAY

When the housewife goes to the fish market in search of something that is different and appealing she often looks longingly at shad roe. On learning the price she looks hastily away again, if she is at all of an economical turn of mind.

KAREN HOLLIS

Few household budgets can stand the burden of paying $1.50 for enough fish for a very small family, and that is the average price for shad roe even at the height of the season. If the housewife did but know it, there is another fish in the market that is so similar that few persons can recognize the difference when it is properly prepared. It costs only a fraction as much, but is so little known that dealers tell me they rarely have any call for it. This excellent substitute is haddock roe, and it can be had in the markets now as low as 25 cents a pound.

The chief difference, other than the price, is that haddock roe is stronger in flavor and inclined to be a little tough, so this must be corrected by thorough parboiling. Try it to-day, and I am sure you will like it.

Wash and parboil one pound of haddock roe for ten minutes. Cool, sprinkle with a few drops of lemon juice, dip in cracker crumbs and fry in hot oil or butter until well browned.

While the fish is cooking make a highly-seasoned white sauce as follows:

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
3 cups milk
Chopped parsley

Melt the butter, blend the flour and seasoning with it, and add the milk slowly, stirring all the time. Allow it to boil for just a minute or two, add the chopped parsley, pour it over the fish and serve.

TELLING THE WORLD

MORE TO WORRY ABOUT

HERE'S more trouble for you girls. The beauty experts are out with a scarehead that women will grow to look like men if they keep on smoking. And they don't mean look like John Gilbert, either.

The beauticians go on to state that the features of women smokers grow sharper as the habit grows. The skin becomes taut and sallow. The lips lose their rosy color. And they recommend tennis playing as a substitute for the cigaret.

Girls, put that in your cigaret holder and smoke it! Things are certainly breaking bad for the fairer sex. If they acquire smoking habits they look like men. If they put on riding habits they look like men. If they wear golfing togs they look like men. Yep, tennis is all that's left.

This prophecy and its specifications surely sound logical. But we can't believe that if girlies fall for the temptations of the cigaret they will grow Adam's apples.

It is true that dragging on the deadly fag has an evil effect on the sweeter sex. But after all, as Kipling said, a woman is only a woman, but a good hula dancer is a smoke.

However, the beauty experts may be right. But whenever women start looking like men it is going to be tough on Flo Ziegfeld, Earl Carroll and George White.

But even this eventuality may have its compensations. With both sexes looking alike it will not be necessary for a man to read a paper in the subway when a woman is standing up in front of him.

If, as and when women look like men, a girl can be a brother to rejected suitors. And the world's best vaudeville joke will go like this:

"Who was that gentleman I seen you with last night?"

"That wasn't no gentleman—that was my wife."

After all, it wouldn't be so bad if female smokers look like men as long as they don't act like men and start borrowing cigarets.

We think, however, that the beauticians have overstated the case. It is impossible for a woman to look like a man. A man's habiliments are usually baggy at the knees. And you cannot bag a pair of nude stockings.

No, there are too many flaws in the beauty experts' argument. They say a woman's skin becomes taut. That means she is tight and her skin is full. But it's booze, not cigarets, that does that.

They say women's complexions will become sallow. Wrong again. There can be a cigar store on every street corner, but girlies' faces will never be sallow so long as there's a drug store on the other corner.

They say girls' lips will lose their rosy color. But not if they keep them off some guy's cheek.

But they are right in saying that tennis playing is the best cure. When tennis girls do those leaps for the rotogravure sections, they certainly do not look like men.

We hope the time will never come when our whole race of women looks like men. That would make Julian Eltinge America's sweetheart.

LANDING FIELDS ON BUILDINGS FOR L.A.

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—At a not distant time, one can step into his plane and say: "Home, James," and be flown right to the building. And Los Angeles is preparing for that day.

With one skyscraper flying field in project, the county regional planning commission has called conferences with army, navy and commercial aviation experts to study metropolitan flying conditions with reference to the use of buildings as landing fields.

Meanwhile, sponsors of the $16,000,000 El Travia Industrial Terminal and Airport were seeking a new site for their proposed height limit building with a modern landing field on the roof.

Los Angeles hopes to be first in the race for development of this phase of metropolitan flying.

While admitting the day was distant when landing fields would be constructed on rows of large buildings in down town areas, the commission visions just such a situation in future years, and believes that Los Angeles should be prepared to cope with the question.

Of importance in this problem will be a study of the effect on air currents of irregular building heights, and the possibly beneficent result to be obtained by limiting towers on roofs and similar obstacles.

Designation of a committee of experts to take up these problems was declared a definite step toward the realization of the plan. At least three months will be taken before a preliminary report will be made.

Lieut. Col. Roscoe Turner, former army flier; Major John Jeffers of the California National Guard, and Lieut. E. B. Koger, U. S. N., were selected by the commission to supply technical information to the commission.

Carl Bush of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, was named chairman of the special committee, with William J. Fox, chief county zoning engineer, in charge of technical details.

The El Travia project will go ahead, its sponsors declared, as soon as a site can be found. The one previously selected for the development was in the path of a proposed street opening project.

MANY SONGS IN HAPPY DAYS

Imposing in prodigal splendor and dazzling in lavish beauty are the many sets provided for "Happy Days" Fox Movietone all star, all talking musical romance with 100 stage and screen celebrities, coming today to the Fox-California theater for an engagement of two days.

Mere words are inadequate to describe them. Nothing so gorgeous and magnificent has heretofore been attempted at any motion picture studio. They are amazingly beautiful.

The terraced minstrel show set with its lustrous expanse of gold and silver drapes, its 14 huge jeweled sunbursts, its mammoth spreading fans in red, green and gold, all in a blaze of perfect lighting, is, perhaps the most notable of the sets and when it is populated by 150 screen personalities all in brilliant and gorgeous costumes, the picture is beyond description.

Another set that has eye appeal is the stupendous cake employed in the grand finale, "The Wedding Cake." Still another colorful set is the one furnished for Sharon Lynn and Ann Pennington a full stage number entitled "Snake Hips." The much discussed question, "Does a snake have hips" will be answered in this number with its fantastic setting and enchanting background of 50 beautiful girls.

The Stage and Screen Club set where all the mals stars congregate in the picture is one of beauty and attractiveness. This is modernistic in design.

Two imposing steamboat sets and other locations are seen during the unfolding of the delightful romance of which the ministrel show is a climax.

Another highlight of the production is the specialty introduced by Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe entitled "Vic and Eddie," a travesty on what they did in "The Cock Eyed World." This is done with a background of 100 or more black-face characters with tambourines and George Olsen and his music.

Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor also have an effective number entitled "We'll Build a Little World of Our Own."

These are however, but few of the 20 or more specialties introduced during the action of the picture with an accompanying chorus of 150 voices and its 50 beautiful dancing girls.

"Happy Days" was directed by Benjamin Stoloff and Walter Catlett was in charge of stage direction. Earl Lindsay staged the dance ensembels.

Monkey Uses Telephone To Tie Up Traffic

CHICO, April 23. — Monkey business in the telephone service at a local garage is reported by the proprietor.

A patron of the place, attempting to use the telephone in the office of the garage, was unable to get the operator. On the other hand, the operator seemed to be making all sorts of funny noises, apparently in an endeavor to call the garage.

Baffled for the nonce, the patron strolled out to the back of the shop to tell the garageman about his dilemna, meanwhile allowing full play to his deductive powers. His mental efforts were rewarded.

The visitor noticed that the proprietor had recently installed an extension telephone near his workbench. This alone was not strange. What struck him as odd was the fact that a monkey was chattering away into the instrument's transmitter.

Monkey-wrenches have a place near the workbench. Monkeys have no business near a telephone.

Investigation brought forth the fact that the simian is the pet of the fire department, located next door. The firemen were notified. The monkey and the telephone trouble were removed simultaneously.

DAWSON HALTS EXPOSE OF U.S.G.A.

BY FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)
(Copyright, 1930, UP)

NEW YORK, April 23. —(UP)— Before sailing for England on board the S. S. Berengaria early today, Johnny Dawson, of Chicago, recently declared ineligible for amateur golf in this country, acted to prevent a threatened expose on his behalf which might have blasted the august United States Golf Association to its very foundations.

The storm was brewed in the middle-west, where Johnny has a host of admirers, and was aimed at the amateur standing of a number of the country's most prominent golfers, including at least two members of the executive committe of th U. S. G. A.

Although grievously disappointed because of the recent action barring him from further amateur competition, Dawson, like a sportsman, refused to authorize the move on his behalf. Johnny pleaded with his western friends not to make public the documents and charges they had prepared.

This sporting action on Dawson's part prevented an outburst which undoubtedly would have made things most unpleasant for the U. S. G. A., as well as for a number of golfers who, at present, are recognijed as amateurs.

Because of this, although he still hopes to regain his amateur standing, Dawson persuaded his friends to withhold their fire temporarily. Whether the matter will be brought up when a representative of Western Golf Association attends a meeting of the executive committe of the U. S. G. A. at Southampton this coming week-end remains to be seen.

The question of Dawson's eligibility will be discussed on that occasion, with littl likelihood that Johnny will be reinstated as an amateur. At present he is barred on a technicality.

CARBON TYPES

By DR. G. A. ESTERBERG

(For the purpose of making each article on Types complete in itself, a review of the introduction to the subject will precede the discussion of each type.)

The human being as well as the plant, is built by attracting to itself certain elements from food, air and water. Certain types attract certain elements. In turn, the dominant elements composing the body, acting and reacting much as they act elsewhere in Nature, determine the physical and mental type of the individual. Responsibility for the body's choice of these elements rests principally upon the action and interaction of the glands of internal secretion and dominant glands in each case being discussed under the particular type.

The Carbon Type

Carbon is a builder and is very abundant in nature, constituting about one half of the whole vegetable kingdom. In the body it is a heat and energy producer when present in moderation and combined with a summicient amount of oxygen to produce proper combustion in the tissues. When present in excess it results in muscle weakness, excess of fat, flabby flesh and a feeling of chronic dredness.

The Carbon Type is bulky in build. Her body is soft and plastic. She has small hands and feet; her skin is pink, and her hair is usually light. She is much less inclined to hard work and continued effort than her Calcium sister. She has a weak, pleasure-seeking, peace-loving nature. Tho she is indolent she is a lively talker, a good social mixer, amiable and pleasing. She is disposed to agree with everyone and because of her affability is vry well liked.

Carbon types like to read novels eat candy, lounge in hammocks and take life easy. They do not care for athletics of any kind and exercise is equally distasteful to them. Mental effort is as difficult and uninteresting to the Carbon type as physical effort. As a result they are agreeable planners but not effective doers of things.

The Carbon type of body, unlike the Calcium type, utilizes the water, fat and sugar contents of milk and other foods, ignoring the firmer elements that would tend to build a more solid body. The accumulation of carbon in the body tissues results in the incomplete combustion of carbon and the production of carbonic gases which prevent oxygen being carried to the tissues. This predisposes to digestive, diabetic, toxic and nervous disease tendencies.

Diet

Foods to avoid—those rich in starch or sugar.

Potato, honey, figs, rice, brown sugar, candy, bread (whole wheat or rye and pastry.

Corrective diet:

Okra, celery, carrots, spinach, asparagus, cauliflower, watercress cucumber, radishes, onions, garlic mushrooms, dandelions, tomatoes.

Cottage cheese, walnuts, almonds, blackberries, strawberries, gooseberries, cherries and peaches.

Of particular value to the Carbon type will be found the hints for cooking to be given in next week's article. The best chemical combination possible to obtain man be rendered useless or even harmful by incorrect cooking. No vegetable should be cooked longer than 30 or 40 minutes. If it does not cook tender in that length of time it is too old and fibrous to be best for human consumption. Long cooking kills the delicious chemicals that are so beneficial to the body. It renders inert the delicate chemicals which might otherwise tip the scales of the body metabolism in favor of health.

Endocrine Glands

The chief glands concerned in the development of the Carbon type are the thyroid, the pituitary and the gonads (ovaries). Disease processes affecting any of these glands may be responsible for too much weight being accumulated.

Next week we will consider the Silicon type. Some practical dietetic suggestions, including points on cooking will be included

BOY LOST 3 DAYS FOUND SAFE

REDDING, April 23. — (UP) After three days and three nights of fright and hunger, 6-year-old Asa Lee Lakely, Jr., was rescued late today from the slopes of Mt. Burney, over which he had wandered hysterically.

He was found huddled beneath a homemade lean-to of boughs he had fashioned roughly. The lad was snuggled close to the ground for warmth.

Following faint footprints and broken twigs and pieces of the boy's blouse torn by bushes, F. H. Buick, of Coran, Calif., and Leslie B. Ralston, of Montgomery Creek, came to his retreat.

Asa disappeared last Sunday morning while his parents were repairing their car which had broken down while making the steep grade over Mount Burney.

More than 300 persons joined in the search that followed. The hunt was not given up by day or night. Torches and flashlights were used at night in the hunt for the child.

Ralston and Buick resumed the search from Burney Springs, where footprints were found yesterday. They fouund him huddled beneath his lean-to.

Tells Story

The boy told a story on his return of how he wandered in an exhausted condition in search of water. Where the snow and the timber line melts, he quenched his thirst with snow, and made snowballs to carry with him, but they soon melted, leaving his throat parched.

The gnawing hunger caused by his three-day fast, wore down his resistance, and this, combined with the long weary nights, during which strange unknown noises mingled with those of the tawny mountain lions, clutched his little heart with fear so that he was bewildered and knew not what to do.

He came to the Burney Springs, but did not have the foresight to stay near water after quenching his thirst. He roamed aimlessly, becoming more hysterical every moment, his one desire being to reach people, his mother and father.

Lad Found

Last night as he huddled in his tiny lean-to, he saw the flickering lights of torches far down the mountainside. He raised his tiny voice in desperate cries for help, but the rocky slopes only choed back his frail effort, mocking him in his misery.

Finally exhausted from shouting, which at this stage, was a great exertion, he sobbed himself to sleep.

It was a glad cry that greeted the two woodsmen, however, when they came upon him at noon today.

Condemned Man Given Reprieve By Gov. Young

SACRAMENTO, April 23.—(UP) —Gov. C. C. Young today granted a stay of execution to Joseph Troche, sentenced to hand at San Quentin Friday, until May 23.

Troche, who was sentenced to death for the murder of his sweetheart, Mary Lorenzo, in El Dorado county, November 27, 1927, was given a reprieve after six justices of the supreme court, headed by Justice Tyler of the Appelate court had asked Governor Young to intervene.

Bcause these high officials of the courts have seen fit to ask for clemency to Troche, said Governor Young. "I am compelled to intervene in order that new investigations of evidence can be made."

A recent theory advanced to Governor Young by Ray Coughlin, Socramento attorney, that Troche had attempted suicide, and the fact that he was found with a bullet wound in his head, was never advanced at the trial. Only one cartridge was fired from the gun claimed to have been used by Troche in the murder, Coughlin said.

On recommendations of friends he had sought acquittal solely on an insanity plea.

Triplet Girls Born, Two Die

PORTLAND, Ore., April 23.—UP —Triplet girls were born to Mr. and Mrs. Victor Scheibert at Shellwood hospital here today. Only one of the three infants was alive a few hours after birth. The mother and the other baby, however, were reported to be quite well. Scheibert is an employe of the Oregon Worsted company of Portland.

THREE KILLED IN AIR CRASH

ATTICA, N. Y., April 23.—UP— Major Lionel M. Woolson, chief aeronautical engineer of the Packard Motor company, was killed with two companions today when their Verville cabin monoplane crashed into the side of a hill during a heavy snowstorm.

The other victims were Harold B. Scutt, pilot, of Douglaston, N. Y., and Carl E. Knight, of Uniontown, Pa.

The airplane was driven by a new and revolutionary type of Diesel oil-burning motor, which Maj. Woolson had developed. It was being flown from Detroit, whence it started at 10:30 a. m. to New York for exhibition at the air show.

Scutt piloted the plane successfully through part of a snowstorm that struck the Great Lakes region. But the visibility was so poor near Attica that he began circling for a landing, temporarily blinded. Farmers heard the drone of the engne, and feared a calamity was near.

The SUN pours fragrance into these tobaccos

LONG BEFORE the choice leaves of golden Turkish and velvety brown Domestic tobacco are selected for Camel Cigarettes, nature's own alchemy has worked a miracle in them that no effort of man can hope to duplicate.

Every tiny leaf-cell is irradiated—stored full of goodness by the clean, pure vigor of the sun!

Our share in the making of Camels is to see that all of the fragrance, mildness, mellowness, aroma—in a word all of the natural goodness of these sun-ripened tobaccos is preserved and developed—then to combine them into the smooth, delightful harmony of the famous Camel blend, and manufacture them into cigarettes by the most modern methods known to the industry.

You can taste the natural goodness in every delicious puff of a Camel Cigarette.

COLD WEATHER DELAYS BIG GAMES

By UNITED PRESS

Major league schedules were disrupted by cold weather Wednesday, with only three games played.

The opening game at Pittsburgh between the Pirates and Reds was halted by a snowstorm as the Pirates came to bat in the third inning. Pittsburgh was leading at the time, 1 to 0. A crowd of 20,000 persons braved the cold weather.

For the second time, the Boston Braves were forced to postpone their opening game at home against the New York Giants.

In the American league, cold weather prevented the games at New York, Cleveland and Washington.

There have been 13 postponements in the American league and 10 in the National league, piling up 23 double-headers in the first nine days of the season.

American League:

The St. Louis Browns moved into a tie with Cleveland for fourth place in the American league by beating Detroit 5 to 1, in the only game played Wednesday. Dick Coffman held the Tigers to six hits, although he walked ten men. Schulte had a perfect day at bat with two singles and a double in three trips to the plate.

National League:

The Chicago Cubs gained undisputed possession of third place Wednesday by defeating the St. Louis Cardinals, 6 to 5, on Charley Grimms' single with two down which scored Hack Wilson with the winning run.

The Phillies batted out a 16 to 15 victory over Brooklyn, scoring the winning run in the ninth when Jake Flowers, Robins' second baseman, fumbled Thompson's grounder. Then pitchers were used in the game: six by Brooklyn and four by the Phillies.

Chuck Klein hit his third home run of the season with one man on base in the eighth inning.

GRID PRACTICE TO OPEN AT HIGH

Spring football practice will start at Richmond Union high school next week, according to Ivan Hill, Richmond Union high school football coach.

Contestants for positions on the varsity and B squads will mingle during the earlier stages of preperation for fall competition. The spring practice is for the purpose of giving the coach an idea of what material he will be able to use when he starts training the recruits in earnest.

Richmond's varsity and B grid squads were not exceptionally successful in last year's season, although they succeeded in defeating several teams of high standing in the eastbay region. This year additional effort will be put forth to send a high-class outfit on the gridiron in Richmond Union high school's first year in Alameda County Athletic league football competition.

A number of pre-season contests have been scheduled for the Richmond Union high school varsity eleven next fall. The local boys will meet the Oakland Technical high school squad Aug. 29 on the local high school field. The Richmondites will then clash with the University High school varsity on Sept. 5 here. The local team will travel to San Leandro Sept. 19 to clash with the San Leandro high school squad. Richmond will meet Concord high school at Concord Sept. 26.

Elks Baseball Squad Formed

The Ricamond Elks diamond squad will again enter the California Elks baseball league this year, it was announced at a recent meeting of lodgemen interested in the sport.

Following a season of open contests, the local Elks nine will compete with the Elk lodges of Oakland, Alameda, San Francisco, and probably several more teams that may enter the league later in the year.

The local team will be managed by George Shaw.

Annie Laurie Kin Called By Death

DUMFRIES, Scotland — A kinman of "Bonnie Annie Laurie," Colonel Sir Claude V. Laurie, 4th Baronet of Maxwelton, died in his 75th year at Maxwelton House, his estate in Dumfreisshire.

Joe Viano Will Coach High Nine

Ivan W. Hill, head coach at Richmond Union high school, yesterday resigned his position as coach of the high school varsity baseball squad in order to give more of his time to preparations for the coming football season.

Joe Viano, veteran short stop of the Richmond Union high school varsity nine, will take up the duties of baseball coach for the remainder of the present season.

Several more games are still to be played by the local high school in Alameda County Athletic league competition. Although Richmond's chances of entering the finals have vanished, the local boys are still valiantly endeavoring to get back into the higher ranks of the league. They have had a rather hectic season this year, defeating the league-leading Berkeley and Alameda high schools, and losing to teams of a lower standing.

The Richmond high school varsity nine will tangle with the Alameda high school athletes tomorrow on the Alameda high school diamond at four o'clock. Johnny Babich will chuck for the Richmondites, and Rosano will do the receiving for the locals.

The other boys who are expected to play for Richmond in tomorrow's contest are: Scarcella, 1b; San Filippo, 2b; Rogers, 3b; Viano, ss; Transue, Rollino, Juillerat, outfielders.

I. O. O. F. Nine Plays Concord There Sunday

The Richmond Odd Fellows will travel to Concord Sunday to tangle with the Concord nine. The contest will start at two o'clock.

Carl Kamb is scheduled to start on the mound for the local lodgemen, while Gualdoni will do the receiving for the Richmondites.

The local Odd Fellows, although defeated by the Richmond Y. M. I. in their first game of the season last Sunday, are yet confident that they will be able to show their superiority to the Concord boys this week-end.

Local Outboard Fans Enter In Stockton Race

Outboard motor fans of California will participate in the race from Stockton to San Francisco by water Sunday. The race is being held under the auspices of the Pacific Motor Boat show in San Francisco. It is being sponsored by the Outboard Motors association of Northern California.

Dr. Francis Kent and William Remell, both of Richmond, have entered the motor marathon.

The race will start at Stockton at eight o'clock Sunday morning. The boats will stop at Pittsburg for 15 minutes, and will arrive at San Francisco about 11:30 o'clock.

OAKS DEFEAT SEALS IN SECOND

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—UP—The Sacramento Senators, who boosted Oakland into first place of the Pacific Coast league Tuesday, benefitted by the move today and climbed into second place with their second straight victory over Los Angeles by a score of 7 to 5.

The Angels in two days had dropped to third place and the San Francisco Seals were in fourth position, three full games behind Oakland. Commanding the situation from the start, the Oaks defeated the Seals, 4 to 2, today.

Five pitchers were on the mound for Los Angeles. In the seventh inning the Angels made their only real bid for victory by scoring three runs but that left them three behind.

A home run by Andy Vergez with Arlett on base accounted for two runs by Oakland in the second inning and they were never headed, although the Seals had three on base in the last of the ninth.

Seattle beat Hollywood, 6 to 4, and rain forced postponement of the game between the San Francisco Missions and Portland.

. . . and COLONEL LINDBERGH establishes the newest Transcontinental Record with RICHFIELD

AT EXACTLY eleven minutes, fifty two seconds past 11 P. M. Easter Sunday, a speeding Lockheed Sirius plane powered with a Pratt & Whitney Wasp motor, piloted by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh with Mrs. Lindbergh acting as co-pilot, appeared over Roosevelt Field, Long Island, circled the field three times, touched the ground in a perfect three-point landing and another Transcontinental record had been made with Richfield.

Colonel Lindbergh, Technical Advisor of the T.A.T.-Maddux Lines, made this flight to test the possibilities of using higher altitudes for air transport.

Lindbergh took off in the early dawn Sunday, his plane carrying 446 gallons of Richfield gasoline in the tanks. He followed the "great circle" route, flying at altitudes ranging from 10,000 to 15,000 feet . . . streaking through the sky at an average speed of more than 175 miles per hour.

Richfield joins with the nation in saluting the "Flying Colonel" and Mrs. Lindbergh. Once again Lindbergh demonstrates the superb courage and flying skill that made possible his history-making flight across the Atlantic.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

SYNOPSIS

David Wade and Stella Blackney, having fled from Stella's husband to a South Sea Island, quarrel about the amorous attentions which Moira, a half-caste girl they have befriended, pays to David whom she threatens to win away from Stella. The latter is so wounded by the quarrel that she enters an oarless boat and is carried out to sea. Moira refuses to lend the repentant David a schooner to search for Stella unless he promises to marry her. The cutter which had taken their first shipment of merchandise to Tema returns and David prepares to sail in it.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued

He stepped out on to the veranda and to the head of the steps. He feared she would utterly break down.

"Let me come, David! Let me come with you! Let me!"

A feeling of commiseration came to him, overriding his judgment, brushing aside his instinctive dislike of the idea.

"All right, then!" he said, without looking round. "But hurry! For God's sake hurry!"

CHAPTER XIV

And there were others who refused to stay quietly at home, one of them being Lo-oru, who, as the vessel swung away from the land, was discovered hiding in the hold

And so, a company considerably diverse of motive, they sailed the passage in the reef to the outer sea.

He made out the face distinctly. It was O'Shane!

The wind was steady, and of a strength that creased the sea rather than roughed it, and yet gave to the cutter a seven-knot gait, and the sky was clear as only a tropic sky can be clear.

Hope welled strong in Wade's breast as he stood there in the rigging, the centre of the wide and glittering circle of the sea. The height gave him a sensation as of omnipotence. He was sure to find her, he told himself, as the miles washed by.

But after two hours he was not so sure. The wind had slacked, and with the lesser speed came impatience. He wanted speed, plenty of speed. He wanted nothing in the world so much.

And so for another hour the cutter made her southing way. Then Wade's anxiety grew to acutest alarm. As though from nowhere came a shrouding of clouds that destroyed the brightness of the day as completely as though it had never been—rain-clouds. Visibility was reduced by half, and less than a half.

Moira's voice came to him, even-toned and calm:

"And if rain comes and drives away the wind altogether——"

"You are very much mistaken if you think I am going to give in."

He began a restless pacing of the deck.

"I am going to find her," he said. "Find her, you understand—if it means sailing the whole of the South Seas."

"Ah David!" said the half-caste on the intake of the breath, and so softly that he scarcely heard her. Her eyes were full upon him, wide open and intense.

She half turned her head; and when she spoke again it was with a certain listlessness.

"What are you going to do?" she asked. "She can't——"

"Can't what?"

"Can't have drifted much farther than this. We are at least sixteen miles from Motogaru—and the way I have worked it out the tide couldn't have taken her much more than that."

"I don't know what to do!" Wade cried. "Everything seems to have gone wrong. Look at those clouds! Just look at them! Crowding in on us as though determined to prevent us seeing! and even if the sky were clear, how do we know we are actually on her track?"

This was a question which had presented itself earlier, but in the optimism which then was his he had put it aside.

"She mightn't have drifted as exactly south as we have sailed," he went on. "The currents play tricks. She might be back there somewhere, just out of sight of our course. I would like to go back and zigzag about a bit." He ran his hands through his hair. "But—but what if she is ahead of us all the time? What if those damned Umus have found her and are making for their village with her?"

He stopped. The dreadful possibility seemed to dry up speech. A trembling shook him as a fever might have shaken him. "God!" was all he could say. "God!"

The half-caste rose and came to him. He saw her as one sees things seen in a dream as things scarcely related to consciousness.

"Steady dear," she said, caressingly, and laid a hand on his arm.

He had a vague fear she was going to kiss him. But she didn't. For a moment she stood there, her eyes searching his face; eyes filled with deep tenderness and concern.

"We shall find her," she said firmly. "Of course we shall."

"But how? How? With the wind failing like this, we shan't be able soon to go either back or ahead. We'll just have to stick here, idle, unable to do a damn' thing—while all the time she is——"

"A way will show itself. It always does. Don't despair, David. There's no good in despair. Have courage!"

"Thank you, Moira," he said simply.

She smiled faintly; then a sudden dampness came into her eyes, and her grip of him relaxed.

"I—I can't bear to see you distressed," she said, a little falteringly in an aside to herself.

"Rain comes to eat up the wind," said Dolobe who steered. "There, you see!"

Like a close-ranked army the rain came, treading the sea, trampling flat the ripple and the swell—perpendicular rain that seemed to stand rather than to pour; rain which, as it reached the cutter, was like a veil but thicker than any veil. Visibility was reduced to the vessel's length, and was but partial visibility at that. There was no sky, only rods of descending water.

Wade went down into the cabin. No one spoke, nor wanted to speak. There seemed to be nothing to say. The sound of the rain dominated and oppressed.

And then with a suddenness that startled them the pat-pattering of the rain grew quieter.

"Thank God for that!" Wade exclaimed, and made for the short stair leading to the deck.

"Listen!" came Lo-oru's voice. "That noise—what is it?" She had jumped to her feet.

"The wind coming back, I suppose," said Moira.

"No — something else! Listen, master! You not hear it?"

They ran up on deck, the three of them. The rain had thinned, and in the clouds was definite promise of a break.

"A kerosene steamer!" cried Lo-oru. "A-ah! a kerosene steamer!"

"A motor-boat!" exclaimed Wade.

He heard it now, distinctly, a quick throbbing to the southward. And presently, like something from another world, the hull of a vessel loomed through the rain, then two tall masts.

Wade stared through one glass as never he had stared through a glass before, straining his eyes, cursing the slowness of the schooner's approach, striving to make out the people about her deck, searching for sign of a white dress, just as he had scanned the cutter's deck for sign of a white dress at the time of her return from Tema.

And all he saw were crew-boys, and on the after deck a white man, also with binoculars to eyes. The man was of enormous build and his figure was distinctly familiar. Wade felt it was all a little incredible. Then when the schooner hove to and lowered a boat, and the white man got down into it he made out his face distinctly, and knew that the incredible was true.

"O'Shane!" he said. "O'Shane!"

CHAPTER XV

The small boat scraped alongside. O'Shane mounted agilely to the deck and came striding along. Wade stood ready for an outburst of recrimination, followed by physical attack. But this was secondary in his consciousness. The thing that came first was need to know whether Stella had been picked up by this schooner which had come so unexpectedly out of the rain.

"You have found her?" he asked eagerly.

O'Shane came right up to Wade and glared in his face. His great fists were clenched menacingly, and his mouth was grimly set.

23 KILLED IN NEW INDIA RIOTING

Fight On

A number awaiting trial climbed to the roof of the prison and shouted revolutionary slogans. As guards carried the prisoners from the roof and locked them in a ward, men stoned the guards. Major Dutt, superintendent, then ordered the prisoners confined to separate cells.

The guards rushed the prisoners to carry out the instructions, and the superintendent and a few others were injured in the melee.

A number of persons in the crowd outside the lockup rooms attempted to scale the prison walls, but police prevented them.

TWO NEW OUTBREAKS KILL TWELVE

CALCUTTA, April 23. —(UP)— Two new fatal outbreaks of violence occurred in Bengal territory today as police here fought the Ghandi independence movement with sharp restrictions on public gatherings.

Police sent from here Saturday clashed in the jungle of Hatha Zari, near Chittagong, with insurgents who had raided the latter city Friday night. Seven were reported killed in the fighting and reinforcements and physicians were hurried to the scene from Chittagong.

Several hours earlier another group of revolutionists had descended on Fenzi, Bengal, and raided the police station for arms. A sharp encounter resulted, in which a constable and three others were shot dead.

The eleven deaths today brought the known toll of dead to 22 since Mahatma Ghandi launched the civil independence campaign by making salt illegally at Dandi, on the west coast. Nine were killed in the Chittagong raid and two were slain in a fight at Karachi last week. Hundreds have been injured and numerous leaders of the campaign have been arrested and sentenced. Some have started hunger strikes.

An additional death not due to violence, however, was reported from Navsari, where a Passive resistance volunteer was crushed by a date palm he was uprooting. The man was following Ghandi's instructions to uproot palms from which intoxicating date liquor could be made.

Several other volunteers fell ill at Karachi after eating contraband salt they had gathered from low-lying Greek lands. The Karachi health officer declared such salt unfit for human consumption and ordered all stocks destroyed. An analysis showed the salt contained ferrous sulphide, the officer said.

Many View Exhibit At High School

the elementary, junior high, and high school elementary schools, Roosevelt and Longfellow Junior high schools, and Richmond Union high school on exhibition last night. Charcoal drawings, etchings, and water colors on display all showed the trend toward the modernistic. Among the drawings and paintings on display were portraits of stage celebrities, etchings of nature subjects, cartoons, and posters.

Scrap-books on literature and history made by elementary and junior high school pupils were also on exhibition with the art work.

Dresses Made

The majority of visitors showed great interest on the examples of the dress-making activities of the pupils of home economics. Evening gown, sports frocks, and school dresses all showed fine accomplishment in the art of needle-work. Appetizing examples of the culinary art of the home economics pupils were also on display.

Following the exhibition, the visitors gathered in the auditorium, where they listened to a 15 minute recital by the Richmond Union high school band under the direction of George Morris, music instructor of the Richmond schools.

The event of the evening was the talk on present educational needs given by Dr. McQuarrie, president of the State Teachers' College at San Jose.

Progress Told

Dr. McQuarrie outlined the progress made in the present century in the field of education. He stated that one of the most pleasing aspects of this progress is the evolution from "hoodlumism" to orderliness in the attitude of the pupils of the public schools.

However, the speaker pointed out that there are still many evils in the present educational system that have yet to be abolished. He stated thtat there are still thousands of illiterates in widely separated sections of the country. McQuarrie stated that, out of 147 men examined for enlistment by him in the state of Missouri during the war, 120 men were unable to read or write.

Tells Plan

Another evil that McQuarrie urged must be eradicated is the leisurely attitude taken by many students toward graduation from high school or college. He said that we teach the students to stay in school, and then, when it is time for graduation, they are acquainted with the ways of education but not with the ways of the outside world. They are therefore desirous of staying in school where they are sure of their ground, according to Dr. McQuarrie.

Dr. McQuarrie also stated that our educational system often gives 'irritation instead of education." He said that he was in favor of giving the pupils the subjects they are glad to study than the subjects to which they are prejudiced.

The speaker urged very strenuously that educators should educate pupils, not be afarid of educating pupils beyond their capacity. He stated in conclusion that he believes that the actual use of knowledge is the best way to test knowledge.

Schools Oened

Dr. McQuarrie was introduced by B. X. Tucker, principal of Richmond Union high school.

Last night's exhibition and progra mat the high school officially opened Public Schools week in Richmond. The schools of the city will be open for inspection during class hours until the end of this week.

The object of the week is to let the parents know what their children are being taught in the public schools. The movement is being sponsored by parentteacher organizations and clubs throughout the country.

Brother Rutherford To Give Radio Talk

On Sunday, April 27th, Brother Rutherford will give two lectures over a net-work of stations, with the broadcasts originating at Station KFWM, Oakland.

The first broadcast, which will be for the benefit of the East and Middle West, will take place from six to seven a. m. Pacific Standard Time.

The second broadcast, covering the Western and Mountain regions will be from ten to eleven a. m. Pacific Standard Time. —4-24-2t.

STUDENTS TO HEAR TALK TODAY

First steps toward actual operation of the Student Travel Bureau, recently organized thru the Chamber of Commerce, will be taken at a big assembly in the Richmond union high school at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

Fred D. Parr will outline the plan in detail to the students and urge their support and cooperation. He will take the place of Victor N. Pinckney, of the South African Dispatch Line, who was one of the first to offer transportation over his lines to the successful students. Pinckney is unavoidably prevented from coming to the meeting through a business engagement.

More than 1,000 students will be at the assembly, and the big meeting will also be attended by members and directors of the Chamber of Commerce and by school and city officials. Aubrey Wilson, chairman of the newly organized bureau, will introduce Parr, and explain the status of the project.

The plan calls for the inauguration of foreign study work in the Richmond schools, the studies to be coupled with trips to the waterfront, where capable speakers will guide students over the vessels and explain the movement of cargo to and from Richmond.

Students making the most brilliant marks in the course are to be provided with free transportation to visit foreign countries during the summer vacations. These trips are to be known as the Fred Parr scholarships.

Full details of the plan will be outlined at the school assembly, and steps will be taken toward arranging for the first of these world tours by students this summer.

El Cerrito Firemen Will Hold Social

A social evening will be held in the El Cerrito city hall Saturday night by the El Cerrito Fire department, during which whist will be played and dancing enjoyed.

Duce's Daughter Will Marry Today

ROME, April 23.—UP—Gifts, including presents from the Pope and the houses of Parliament, poured upon Edna Mussolini today on the eve of her marriage to Count Galeazzo Cianno.

The 19 year old daughter of Premier Mussolini and the 26 year old son of Count Costanzo Cianno, minister of comunications, will be married very quietly tomorrow forenoon in the parish church at St. Josephs one block from the Villa Torlonia, Il Duce's home.

Plans Laid For Visit To Pardee Dam

The first view by many Richmond residents of the Pardee dam will be obtained Sunday when nearly 200 local men and women will visit the structure under the guidance of Henry A. Johnston.

He announced yesterday that reservations for the trip had been made by him and that they are now complete.

The tour has been arranged by Johnston, who will head a calvacade of privately owned automobiles leaving Richmond about 8 o'clock Sunday morning, returning late the same day.

Drivers will go to Stockton, then follow the Linden road to Valley Springs, thence to the dam. The dam is about 125 miles from Richmond and is generally reached in three and one half hours' driving.

A luncheon is to be served in the form of an open air picnic on the lawn in front of the Utility District lodge, this to be followed by a talk from Frank W. Hanna, chief engineer and general manager, giving details of the dam and the Mokelumne river project.

The visitors will see the Pardee lake at its best with the largest amount of water it has ever held. The water is now less tsan 20 feet from the spillway and is expected to run over early in May. The storage there now represents approximately five years' supply for all the cities of the Utility District, of which Richmond is one.

First Aid Class To Be Held For Scouts, Firemen

Classes in advanced first aid will be held for members of the Richmond fire department, all members of the police department and scoutmasters of the city at the Boy Scout headquarters, starting on May 1.

The classes will be held under the auspices of the Red Cross, and will be given twice a day—one class in the afternoon and one at night, Tuesday and Thursdays during the entire month of May. Dr. L. St. John Healey will be in charge of the classes.

The classes will start with elementary first aid work and will end with the advanced work.

Pantages In New Plea

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—UP —Affidavits of five physicians to the effect that his life is being endangered by his confinement were filed in the State Supreme court today in a new attempt to secure the release on bail of Alexander Pantages, who is under sentence of 50 years for assaulting Eunice Pringle, dancer. Pantages is in the county jail at Los Angeles awaiting result of an appeal for a new trial.

His counsel in filing the affidavits also held that the theater magnate should be released to prepare a defense in three large damage suits brought against him.

This is the fifth attempt to obtain the release of Pantages.

Local Scots Prepare For Big Tourney

Following a short business session of the St. Andrews' society of Richmond and vicinity in the Richmond clubhouse last night, members of the horseshoe team indulged in practice for the coming tournament with the Gladstone Lodge, Sons of St. George. Major James McLaren, of Albany, has donated a trophy to the St. George lodge, which will be awarded to the winners of the coming tourney.

A committee was appointed to confer with committees from Oakland and San Francisco, to make plans for the annual St. Andrews Society picnic. The committee is composed of James Stewart, William Clark and Robert Fulton.

The next meeting of the society will be held May 14 and will be a social evening under the direction of those members who hail from Canada. They are Bill Brown, Hugh Smith, Robert Small and James Smith.

Peter McCallum presided over the meeting last night, which was followed by refreshments.

Let's Show Them That New Industries Are Welcome

Richmond is an industrial city, the home of many outstanding industries, always seeking new ones and bigger ones.

The Filice and Perrelli cannery is the largest of our recent acquisitions, and tonight there is to be a dinner to give them official welcome to this community.

Let's all be there and show that we are really and truly interested in new industries and are willing to show our sentiments. You won't be bored.

Speeches are scheduled to be short and of the kind that will be truly representative of the many interests involved. Filice and Perrelli officials will be heard, and it is believed their discussion of present and future plans for Richmond will be highly illuminating.

Music, of course.

The Chamber of Commerce sponsors this dinner, to be held at the Hotel Carquinez hotel, 6:30 o'clock this evening, April 24. Reserve through the Chamber. Extend an invitation to your friends.
